INTRODUCTION

In October 1992, Property Research and Development, Inc., a division of Merrill & Associates, Inc. specializing in real estate research and development was contracted by Duenas & Associates, Inc. under the auspices of the Guam Economic Development Authority (GEDA) to conduct an analysis of prevailing home and land prices on Guam. The specific objectives of the analysis were as follows:

- To compile current land sales prices for transactions over the past year covering as much of the island as possible.
 - To segment the land price data according to location, zoning(A, R1, or R2), and infrastructure availability (power, water, sewer).
 - To compile current single-family detached home sale prices for transactions conducted over the past 12 months.
 - To analyze single-family sales price data by municipality and room configuration.
- To gather current condominium and townhouse sales prices for recorded transactions over the past 12 months.
 - To classify and analyze multi-family sales price data by municipality and room configuration.

METHODOLOGY

To achieve the information objectives outlined in the preceding page, secondary research was conducted. Secondary data was obtained from the Guam Board of Realtors through the Multiple Listing Service (MLS). The MLS is currently the largest accessible repository of sales price information on the island. The MLS database represents approximately 30 to 40 percent of all transactions occurring on Guam according to leading brokers and realtors.

Given the highly sensitive and proprietary nature of the information requested, attempting to gather data from appraisers and title and escrow companies proved extremely difficult. Hence, the analysis which follows is based solely on transactions reported in the MLS during the period August 1991 thru September 1992. In order to provide a rich and relatively stable data set, a one year horizon was examined. A much longer time frame would have yielded less representative data considering the furious pace of expansion experienced during the late 1980's. According to leading brokers, real estate prices have stabilized over the past year and consequently provide a much better measure of prevailing home and land sale prices.

In addition to analyzing average prices, median prices were calculated for each key areas of analysis to provide a more accurate and representative assessment of current sales prices. The mean and median are statistical measures of central tendency. However, depending upon the distribution of values, mean prices may or may not accurately reflect the general characteristics of the data set being examined particularly in cases where extremely high values are encountered. In this situation, the median provides a statistically better measure of central tendency as it represents the halfway point of the data being analyzed. If the data set is symmetrically distributed without extremely high or low values, then the median and mean will be relatively close. Conversely, large differences between the median and mean reflects the existence of inordinately high or low values in the data set being analyzed.

Finally, statistically significant comparisons and assessments could not be made for a number of villages as there were too few or no sales transactions reported in the MLS during the timeframe examined. Consequently, it is important to understand that the data may or may not accurately reflect prevailing land and home prices in the area particularly in cases where only one or two sale transactions were reported.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

- The average price of agriculture zoned property throughout the island was approximately $39.00 per square meter, while the average price of residential (R1) land was nearly $82.00 per square meter. Multi-family (R2) property was by far the most expensive, averaging in excess of $330.00 per square meter. Significant differences were measured between median and mean prices for R1 and R2 properties, reflecting the considerable variation in land prices reported over the past year. Median prices among R1 lots were 44 percent lower than mean prices, while median prices for R2 properties were 20 percent less than average prices.
- Among agriculture properties, the most expensive was located in Piti and Inarajan, in large part due to the unique characteristics of the properties sold. All of the land purchased in the municipalities of Piti and Inarajan were reportedly beachfront lots. The average price of properties in Piti and Inarajan were $84.62 and $99.56, respectively. Conversely, the least expensive properties were located in Sinajana. Agriculture zoned land in Sinajana averaged less than $19.00 per square meter. Median and mean prices were relatively close with the exception of properties in Agat, Yigo, and Piti. Median prices in Agat and Piti were approximately $10.00 per square meter lower than mean prices, while the median price in Yigo was $10.00 per square meter higher than the average price.
- The most expensive residential (R1) property^{ies} identified during the research period were located in the villages of Barrigada, Tamuning, Dededo, and Pago Bay. Barrigada properties averaged approximately $188.00 per square meter, while Tamuning and Dededo lots averaged $180.70 and $177.00 per square meter, respectively. Pago Bay properties averaged nearly $144.00 per square meter. The cheapest R1 properties were found in the village of Talafofo. Residential zoned land in Talafofo averaged less than $31.00 per square meter. Median and mean prices among R1 properties in Agat and Tamuning varied significantly. Median prices for Piti and Agat properties were at least $15.00 per square meter higher than the average. No significant differences were measured among other villages.

- The highest priced multi-family properties were located in Tamuning and Sinajana. Prices averaged in excess of $400.00 per square meter in both villages. The lowest prices were reported for Mongmong and Nimitz Hill. Nimitz Hill properties averaged approximately $156.00 per square meter while Mongmong land averaged nearly $130.00 a square meter. Median and Mean prices were identical.
- Among agriculture properties, parcels with power, water, and sewer were the most costly, averaging $45.81 per square meter. The most inexpensive agriculture lots were those providing only water. The average price of properties with water available on site was $18.23 per square meter.
- Among residential properties, lots with power, water, and sewer were the highest. The average price of R1 land with complete utilities was approximately $104.00 per square meter. The lowest priced residential properties were those sold without utilities which averaged $44.04 per square meter.
- Interestingly, the most expensive multi-family zoned property which sold for $500.00 per square meter did not have any utilities available on site. The least expensive R2 parcels were those with only power and water. These properties averaged approximately $136.37 per square meter. The average price of R2 properties sold with complete utilities was approximately $404.31 per square meter.
- Overall, two-bedroom single-family homes averaged $170,250.00, while three and four-bedroom houses averaged $203,692.00 and $264,400.00, respectively. Only one five-bedroom home was sold over the past year. That home sold for $477,500.00. Slight differences were measured between mean and median prices for all types of homes with the exception of five-bedroom houses.

Only one five-bedroom home was sold over the past year. That home sold for $477,500.00. Slight differences were measured between mean and median prices for all types of homes with the exception of five-bedroom houses.

- The most expensive two-bedroom single-family homes were located in the village of Tamuning. The average price of a Tamuning two-bedroom house was nearly $250,000.00. Conversely, the least expensive two-bedroom home was found in Dededo, averaging $127,000.00. Median and mean prices were identical.
- Three-bedroom homes were the most expensive in Agat, Tumon, and Tamuning in that order. The only home sold in Agat over the past year was also the highest priced at $470,000. The average price of three-bedroom homes in Tumon and Tamuning were $320,000.00 and $283,000.00, respectively. The lowest prices were reported for Dededo, Barrigada, and Chalan Pago. All of the homes in these villages averaged less than $190,000.00.
- The highest priced four-bedroom homes were located in Yona, Tamuning, and Piti. The average price of four-bedroom houses in Yona, Tamuning, and Piti were $390,045.00, $380,000.00, and $340,000.00, respectively. The most inexpensive homes were located in Sinajana and Chalan Pago. Homes in these villages averaged less than $171,000.00.
- Five-bedroom homes in Tamuning and Nimitz Hill were the most expensive, averaging in excess of $400,000.00. No other five-bedroom houses were reportedly sold over the past year.
- The cost of multi-family housing was significantly lower than single-family housing. The aggregate average price of a one-bedroom condominium was approximately $108,000.00, while two-bedroom units averaged nearly $140,000.00. Three-bedroom condominiums averaged $196,431.00 compared to $255,000.00 for four-bedroom units. Median and mean prices were identical for one and two-bedroom condominiums. However, median prices among three and four-bedroom units were considerably lower. The median price of a three-bedroom condominium was approximately $160,000.00, while the median price of a four-bedroom unit was $210,000.00.
- Only Chalan Pago reported sales of one-bedroom units. Consequently, the average price of Chalan Pago condominiums mirrored that of the aggregate average.

- As expected, the highest priced two-bedroom condominiums were found in Tumon. Two-bedroom units in Tumon averaged $210,000.00. The least costly two-bedroom units, averaging $132,775.00, were reported in Chalan Pago. Median and mean prices varied only slightly between locations.
- The most expensive three-bedroom condominiums were reported in Tamuning, while the lowest priced three-bedroom condominiums were located in Chalan Pago and Dededo. The average price of a three-bedroom condominium in Tamuning was nearly $248,000.00 compared to $167,222.00 and $163,931.00 in Dededo and Chalan Pago, respectively. As with two-bedroom units, median and mean prices were statistically even with the exception of condominiums in Tamuning, where the median price was $60,000 more than the average price.
- Four-bedroom condominiums were sold in only two villages over the past year: Tumon and Yigo. The average price of a four-bedroom condominium in Tumon was $282,500.00, while the average price of a four-bedroom unit in Dededo was $200,000.00.

LAND PRICE ANALYSIS

A total of 58 land transactions were reported in the Multiple Listing Service (MLS) over the past year. Of the 58 properties sold, 34 were Agriculture ("A"), 20 were Residential ("R1"), and 4 were Multi-Family ("R2") zoned.

Sale Prices by Zoning

The aggregate average price per square meter of Agriculture ("A") zoned property was approximately $39.00, while residential (R1) zoned property averaged $82.00 per square meter. Multi-family (R2) zoned land was the most expensive, averaging over $330.00 per square meter.

Price By Property Zoning
Property Zoning	Average Price Per Square Meter	Median Price Per Square Meter
Agricultural	$39.09	$39.54
R-1, Residential	$81.95	$56.73
R-2, Multi-Family	$336.56	$280.28
Source: Guam Board of Realtors, Multiple Listing Service (MLS)

There were no significant differences measured between mean and median prices for Agricultural property. However, mean and median prices for R-1 and R-2 properties varied substantially, with the widest spread observed for R-1 land. The median price of R-1 property was 44 percent less than the mean price. Similarly, the median price of R2 property was approximately 20 percent lower than the average price.

Sale Prices by Zoning by Location

As shown below, land prices varied distinctly from location to location. Prices for Agriculture zoned land were the highest in Inarajan and Piti. Inarajan lots averaged approximately $99.56 per square meter, while Piti property averaged nearly $84.62 per square meter. All of the properties sold in the municipalities of Piti and Inarajan were beachfront lots, explaining the relatively high prices reported.

Conversely, the lowest land prices were found in the villages of Sinajana and Ordot. Agriculture zoned properties in both Sinajana and Ordot averaged less than $19.00 per square meter. Notwithstanding the beachfront properties reported, land prices throughout the remainder of the island averaged between $21.00 and $51.00 per square meter.

As illustrated above, median and mean^{Ordot} prices were relatively uniform with the exception of prices in the villages of Agat, Yigo, and Piti. Median prices in Piti and Agat were at least $10.00 per square meter less, while median prices in Yigo were approximately $10.00 more than average prices.

Residential (R1) zoned properties also varied significantly between locations. The most expensive R1 properties were located in Barrigada, Tamuning, Dededo, and Pago Bay. Barrigada properties averaged approximately $188.00 per square meter, while Tamuning and Dededo lots averaged $180.70 and $177.00 per square meter, respectively. Pago Bay properties averaged nearly $140.00 per square meter. Again, the exceptionally high prices observed in these villages is largely a function of some unique property characteristic attributable to the site such as views, road frontage, etc.

The lowest R1 prices were found in the village of Talofofo. Residential zoned land averaged less than $31.00 per square meter. Residential property throughout the island averaged between $42.00 and $60.00 per square meter. Median and mean prices varied significantly in the villages of Agat and Tamuning. Median prices in both villages were at least $15.00 per square meter higher. No ostensible differences were measured among other villages.

Multi-family (R2) zoned land was by far the most expensive. All of the properties were sold for over $100.00 per square meter, with the highest average prices being reported in the villages of Tamuning and Sinajana. Multi-family zoned property in both these villages averaged in excess of $400.00 a square meter. In contrast, average prices in Mongmong and Nimitz were two to three times lower. Multi-family land prices in Mongmong averaged less than $130.00 per square meter, while prices in Nimitz averaged approximately $156.00 per square meter.

Sale Prices by Infrastructure

As with zoning and location, the average sales price of property typically increased or decreased in direction relation to the availability of utilities (power, water, and sewer).

Among agriculture zoned properties, parcels with power, water, and sewer were the most expensive, averaging $45.81 per square meter, while properties with power and water were considerably lower averaging approximately $35.00 per square meter. Interestingly, properties without utilities averaged more than properties with water. The average price of properties with water was approximately $18.23 per square meter, whereas properties without utilities averaged nearly $33.00 per square meter.

Utilities	# of Properties	Average Price Per Square Meter	Median Price Per Square Meter
Power	NRS	NRS	NRS
Water	3	$18.23	$18.91

As graphically displayed below, median and mean prices varied marginally between the types of utilities offered.

In comparison, the average price of R1 zoned properties offering power, water, and sewer, were substantially higher than the average price of agriculture properties with similar infrastructure. The average price of residential land with complete utilities (power, water, sewer) on site was approximately $104.00 per square meter, more than twice the average price of agriculture properties with similar utilities.

Residential property with sewer averaged nearly $55.00 per square meter compared to $56.61 for R1 properties with power and water. Vacant land without utilities averaged approximately $44.00 per square meter.

Median prices for properties with complete utilities were measurably higher than average prices. The median price for land with all utilities was approximately $70.00 per square meter compared to the mean price of $104.00.

Multi-family (R2) zoned properties with power, water, and sewer were nearly four times as much as R1 zoned parcels with similar infrastructure. The average price per square meter of R2 property with all utilities was approximately $400.00 compared to $104.00 for R1 property. Multi-family lots with only power and water averaged less than $136.00 per square meter, while properties without utilities averaged over $500.00 per square meter. No ostensible differences were measured between median and mean prices.

SINGLE-FAMILY HOUSING

A total of 81 transactions were reported during the period August 1991, through September 1992. Of the 81 single-family homes sold, over 60 percent (50 units) were three-bedroom homes, approximately 31 percent (25 units) were four-bedroom houses, while some 5 (4 units) percent and 2 percent (2 units) were two and five-bedroom homes, respectively.

Average Sale Prices by Room Configuration

The pricing of existing single-family housing is currently far above the average household's purchasing ability (See Appendix B - Affordability Table). As shown in the table below, two-bedroom homes averaged approximately $170,000.00 while three and four-bedrooms averaged $203,692.00 and $264,400.00, respectively. Not surprisingly, five-bedroom homes were the most expensive, averaging in excess of $475,000.00. Median prices were clustered closely around the average with the widest variance observed for two-bedroom homes. The median price for two-bedroom houses was approximately $152,500.00 compared to an average price of $170,200.00. Can find

CONCLUSIONS

Overall, land prices for multi-family parcels were the most expensive, averaging over $330.00 per square meter followed by residential properties (R1) which averaged approximately $82.00 per square meter. Agriculture zoned lots were the least expensive and most accessible to most residents as evidenced by the large number of agriculture property sold over the past year. Agriculture properties currently average less than $40.00 per square meter.

With respect to housing, single-family and multi-family homes were equally expensive. The average price of a three-bedroom home was approximately $203,692.00 compared to $196,431 for a three-bedroom condominium. The least expensive housing were found in Mangilao, Dededo, and Chalan Pago, while the most expensive homes were predominantly from Tumon and Tamuning.
